FROM THE PASTOR'S PEN

I thought I'd rerun the story from my sermon about the priest, the doctor, and the lawyer for those not at church last Sunday.

A story I read illustrates how this kind of shift in perspective, and how we view things, can make the apparently impossible, possible. It's about a man who loved his money very much. In fact, he was such a miser that in his will he stipulated that he wanted all his money to be buried with him. He was going to take it with him after all. At his funeral there were three friends: a priest, a doctor, and a lawyer. After the funeral, the priest said, "Well, I have a confession to make. I'm a bit ashamed, but when no one was looking, I took a little of the money out of one of the envelopes in the coffin. It was so sad to see it just buried and after all it's for a good cause."

The doctor then said, "Yes, I took some too. And I'm ashamed, but I just couldn't let it all go into the ground. So I slipped a little more than you, actually," he said to the priest. "I took one whole envelope."

"I'm ashamed of both of you," the lawyer said. "Stealing from a dead man! I took all the rest of his money, all the other envelopes. But I didn't steal it. I put in a check for the full amount, totally legal." The lawyer was profoundly in touch with the truth of this situation. The check was just as good to the dead man as the cash would have been. It just took a new way of thinking about it, to release the gift. The lawyer thought about the situation in a different way and got all the rest of the money.

When you find the different way of looking at the situation that has stopped you from loving before, then the way is opened to releasing a flood of resources to enable love to use that same key to open other impasses.

Peace and Grace,
Brother Paul

UMW NEWS Labels for Education

Organizations participating in the Labels for Education Program receive free educational materials when redeeming points.

Did you know there are more than 2,500 products participating in Labels for Education? They run the gamut from beverages, breads & cereals, soups, snacks, sauces and gravies to food storage products, magazines and stationery.

Brand names are Campbell's, Pepperidge Farm, Prego, Bic, V8, Goldfish, Emerald, Dannon, Glad, Pop-Secret, Post Cereals and People Magazine. For the products that don't have a label, the caps from the bottles and jars are needed.

Now you know there are at least two or three of these products that you use regularly. We would love to have you save the labels/caps for us to give to UMNC. You may bring your labels to the church office or take them to a Group or Unit meeting.
