Pastor's Ponderings

I tend to be a very ritualistic person, and one of my decades-old rituals is that I read a couple of newspapers (The Commercial Appeal and The Daily Corinthian) every morning while having my coffee. My commitment to the ritual means that I get up at whatever time I need to, in order to have my 'time' before leaving home for any reason. With the 24/7 news coverage these days, the printed news is not really 'news' any more. By the time the paper arrives, we've already heard it or seen it via television or internet. Still I enjoy the working Crossword and Sudoku puzzles. And for as long as I can remember, I've always read the obituaries – even when I was young, which many people found odd. I read obituaries even when I'm traveling, and there's virtually no chance I even know the deceased in the local newspaper wherever I am. (Maybe I am weird!) It's just interesting to me to see the totality of one's life wrapped up in a few lines in the newspaper.

Although I never knew him personally, as a longtime Memphian, I was somewhat familiar with the life and work of civil rights activist, Judge D'Army Bailey, who died last week. I've learned even more about him since his death. In the news reports of his eulogy, he was described as a "mover" by former President Bill Clinton. "The Lorraine Motel could be a parking lot, for all you know, today if it hadn't been for D'Army Bailey", Clinton reminded those attending the funeral service. Memphis Mayor A.C. Wharton described Bailey as a person who, though one in power, also spoke "truth to power". As a judge, Bailey was described and one who "treated all parties fairly and equally". As a community leader, he was as a "bridge builder". Those are all admirable attributes that served to make our city and community better for us all. May he rest in peace from his considerable labors.

Have you ever thought about what your obituary will say? I have. I never expect to contribute to society in the outstanding ways D'Army Bailey did, nor achieve his level of renown; but I do hope the summation of my life will say that at least in some small way I mattered, and that some little corner of the world is better off because I lived. I hope it will attest to my love of Christ and the Church...my family...my work. In the end, what else really matters?

Just pondering...

Blessings always,
Virginia

UMW Candle Burning Program

Please give your gifts and names/events honored to Margaret Ann Ligon. Forms are on the tables outside the Sanctuary for your convenience. Thank you for helping us support world-wide missions. Deadline is July 26.

Our Legacy and Our Future

The UMW Living Timeline is a storytelling project being carried forward to our 150th anniversary and beyond. Be part of the "Timeline" by sharing your story. What are you passionate about? Tell us about it. Think in terms of a dramatic experience that changed the life of an individual or community—changed your life and commitment. Then put it in a creative format: artwork, video, song, poem or scrapbook, for example.

Submit your story, in its creative format to:
