THE WRITE REVEREND

If being a Methodist was easy, anybody could be one. Especially challenging is our itinerate system of clergy deployment. Each year, after consultation with local church Staff Parish Relations Committees and Pastors, our Bishop and his cabinet, made up of all the District Superintendents, meet to project who will serve the needs of the kingdom in what place best and for how long.

Its not an easy job, especially when it seems that the needs of the Annual Conference often appear to trump the needs of any local church and the people in the pews are left thinking and feeling that they don't really matter; their needs have not been heard or considered; their church, in the grand scheme of things, does not matter. But believe me, that is not the case. Preachers also often have those same feelings and frustrations with our system. What we sometimes do not remember, however, is that God's spirit is actively engaged with this process and even when it seems that we, as individuals or congregations, have been forgotten and abandoned and ignored, God is working to bring about God.

In Romans, the 12th chapter, verse 2, the Apostle Paul writes: "Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your minds, so that you may discern what is the will of God—what is good and acceptable and perfect".

The Greek word translated transformed is metamorpoo, from which we get our word metamorphosis. It describes the process through which caterpillars are transformed into beautiful butterflies. One crucial stage in this process is the struggle to leave the cocoon. The newly formed butterfly makes a small whole in the bottom of the cocoon and forces itself through that tight little opening. It's the pressure of getting through that opening that forces fluids in other parts of the body into the butterfly's wings that gives them the strength and form necessary for flight. Without the struggle to escape the cocoon, the butterfly would never fly and would eventually die, never having reached its potential.

The same can be said for us as citizens of the kingdom and collectively in local churches; our present struggles prepare us for the future glory God has for us. The challenge is to complete our work in the cocoon, break out, and try our wings.

Herbert

"For He will command His angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways" Psalm 91:11
 This scripture is certainly true of our Aldersgate family. We are so very thankful to each of you for your calls, visits, cards and prayers and general concern for us at the death of my brother. Thanks to each of you for being angels to us at this time. Special, special, special thanks to Barry & Perri...what true friends you are.

With much love,
 Ed & Judy Stanley

RECIPES

REQUESTED

Okay, Aldersgate cooks—with some of the best cooks in town, there are many great recipes out there that haven't made it into our cookbook files yet. Give us your tried & true favorites or something great you've just discovered. Crockpot creations would be charming, pastries are perfect, desserts would be delectable, along with an entrée or two to entice. Please turn recipes in at the office or to Aleita Tutor, either by hand or by email.

UMW NEWS

Micro-loans Start Businesses and Improve Lives in Cote d'Ivoire

Just one of the many ways the UMW's money to missions changes the world for the better is making 'micro-loans' to women in the Cote d'Ivoire Conference. Dorcas Adou, president of the United Methodist Women in the Abidjan District in this Conference, was praying for a way to help the many women and children living in poverty on the Ivory Coast. She approached the international UMW office in New York and was given $20,000 to make micro loans to help women set up and run enterprises that would feed their families, keep their children in school, teach them good business practices and change their lives. 48 women have used these loans to start their own businesses. Though they work long hours, up to 14 hours a day, for what we would call a pittance, perhaps $10 to $40 a week, these women feel truly blessed to have these business opportunities that they learned of in their local Methodist churches. From tailoring, to juice making, to pressing palm oil and beyond, the lives of these women and their families have been greatly improved, all to the glory of God, with a small investment by United Methodist Women.
